

New Addition to Plaza Opens To-morrow Night

Concerts to Be Held There on Sunday Nights—News of Hotels and Restaurants.

The new addition to the Hotel Plaza at Fifth Avenue and Central Park will be opened to-morrow. This new section in West Fifty-eighth street contains 350 additional rooms, a terrace restaurant and a large ballroom. Each Sunday evening concert will be held there during and after dinner.

The new grill in the former Hotel Knickerbocker was opened last Thursday evening.

The new north restaurant of the Hotel Astor, which has just been completed in the remodeling of the Broadway side of the building, was opened yesterday. The nightly dinner and supper dances are held in the Indian grill, where Al Notary's orchestra furnishes music.

Supper and dancing again is popular in the Waldorf-Astoria grill room, which reopened last Monday. Dinner and dancing was started there this season. Joseph Knecht conducts his orchestra in the grill for both the dinner and supper sessions.

Fred A. Reed, managing director of the Hotel Claridge, has arranged for supper and dancing in the black and gold dining room of the hotel. They began yesterday, from ten o'clock until the closing hour. Ernest Husar and his orchestra play the dance music.

At the Cafe des Beaux-Arts at 50 West Fortieth street the Parisian diners are popular. An orchestra plays for dancing.

Since the Hotel Chelsea in West Twenty-third street has joined the Knott Hotel system many changes have taken place, including a new dining room service. Each evening a chicken dinner is served at 11. Several newly decorated suites have been reserved for yearly rentals.

The grill room at the Pennsylvania was reopened last Monday.

Maurice and Miss Lenora Hughes, his American partner, who have been dancing in England and France with great success for two years, will make their first appearance together in America at the Club Maurice, which opens next Thursday night at 20 West Fifty-first street. Maurice has not danced professionally in this country for more than two years.

The Palais Royal Gardens of Japan, of which Paul Whiteman's dance music is a part, is enjoying large patronage during both dinner and supper.

Billy Arnold's Society Circus, which recently opened the Moulin Rouge's autumn season, is given during dinner, lasting over an hour, and repeated again at 11:30 o'clock.

The continued mild weather, making motoring on Long Island popular, has been one of the chief factors in keeping patronage at the Pavilion Hotel at record figures.

Cavanagh's, at 266 West Twenty-third street, makes a specialty of only a la carte service. There are several rooms that are always in demand for lodges, banquets and parties.

Cafe Boulevard, at Broadway and Forty-first street, in engaging the services of John Mariano's dance orchestra, has made a special contract with them to play music the entire evening.

Thomas Healy at his Golden Glades roof garden at his restaurants at Sixty-sixth street is offering a large show with a series of surprises at least one of which is released every night at either dinner or supper, and sometimes at both.

Bromides, Sulphites And Now a Dulcide

People are divided into two classes, bromides and sulphites, the latter being in negligible quantity, according to John Wesley of "Dulcify." On this subject he said the other day:

"A bromide thinks, does and says things that are understandable to and meet with the approval of every other bromide. He loves to tell you what you already know, and if you are a bromide you listen sympathetically, awaiting an opportunity to tell him something that he digested in his childhood. He is a well meaning soul and a cautious one. In fact, that is his chief fault. We have reached the mountain top following the well worn and devious trail mapped out by his forefathers. The late war and its aftermath may be directly attributed to him. But let us not censure him, for he knows not what he does."

"A sulphite is a person who is recognizable only to a sulphite. It would be bromide of me to attempt to describe him. A sulphite can comprehend a bromide, but the latter finds the former baffling and consequently irritating. But he, too, has a well intentioned soul, and is indifferent to the stones and arrows of outrageous bromides."

"Now you must be either a bromide or a sulphite. There can never be a union of the two like a famous shoe polish. Whenever a bromide attempts this the law of miscegenation comes into effect and an illegitimate thing is produced, which for want of a better word may be called a borite (coined from the first and last syllables of the names of the two classes). I have reversed the second and third letters in the first syllables of bromide for the sake of euphony and expression. This creature's habitation is Greenwich Village—the mecca for his brethren and sister's throughout the country. He is sterile, of course, and his straining lifetime passes fruitlessly away in the ostracism of the two virile classes. "In Dulcify" we have a bromide, who, as played by Miss Lynn Fontanne, becomes glorified. Dear Dulcify, what a privilege to be your husband! I would rather have you for wife than any sulphite history records. Your charm, your elfish eagerness, makes every bromidist you utter a phrase of exquisite moulding and risible originality. The hungry aspirer in your voice, as you humbly ask for praise, when you say 'I introduced them' would stir whatever tenderness lies dormant in the heart of William of Dorn. And when you say 'Business before pleasure' I find myself wondering why nobody else had ever thought of such an excellent idea. Indeed, Dulcify, dear, you are such an adorable bromide that you cause me to be one, and are something new, a Dulcide. Your husband is not a bromidist, but Dulcide. "So here's to you, my Dulcide. For you're something new in my life."

Actress Tells How To Avoid Stage Fright

Miss Kathleen Conways, who has the leading feminine role in "The Man in the Making," James W. Elliott's comedy drama at the Hudson, enjoys the distinction of coming from a family every member of which has at one time or another, appeared on the professional stage. Miss Conways is no stranger to New York audiences. She played here with Low Fields in "Booms Friends" and with Frank McIntyre in "Thirty Days." Last season she was with Henry Miller and Miss Blanche Bates in "The Famous Mrs. Fair." She is a niece of one time Governor McMillan of Tennessee, now Minister to Guatemala. Her grandfather, Capt. J. H. Foster, was one of the largest cotton planters in the South. "I believe that the stage offers more for a girl seeking a career than any other profession," she says, "but it demands more. The work before first night openings is one of tortuous suspense for me. I cannot sleep nor eat—but once I appear before the footlights all my nervousness vanishes. "Stage fright comes to all of us, but I believe that if we adopt the right mental attitude it may be abolished. The first time I appeared in New York I came upon the stage and saw only a blur of light. My nails dug into my hands until the blood came and then suddenly a line of my mother's came to me. 'Fear is funny if you can only realize it, and I was instantly into my part and cool as the proverbial cucumber.'"

"TWO BLOCKS AWAY" GOING OUT
Two productions start their final eight performances to-morrow. Charles Dillingham announces the last week of the New York engagement of Barney Bernard in "Two Blocks Away" at the George M. Cohan Theatre. The character comedian begins his season's tour in Aaron Hoffman's comedy at Detroit on Monday evening, October 10. "Lancelotti and Elaine" begins its fourth and final week at the Greenwich Village Theatre on Monday. The engagement at this theatre was limited to one month because of previous bookings made by the theatre, which will house Arnold Daly's company after the close of the Edwin Milton Royle play. It may be presented uptown later.
